WRITTEN OPINION OF THE INTERNATIONAL SEARCHING AUTHORITY

International application No. PCT/US06/13550

Box No. V Re	easoned statement under Rule 43 $bis.1$ (a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial
ap	plicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

applicability; citations and explana	ions supporting such statement
1. Statement
Novelty (N)	Claims 1-29	YES
	Claims NONE	NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims NONE	YES
	Claims 1-29	NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims 1-29	YES
	Claims NONE	NO

2. Citations and explanations:

Claims 1-29 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over US 2002/0013304 (Wilson). Wilson teaches a method and composition for treating sexual dysfunction in female comprising the administration of the composition comprising testosterone and its derivatives such as methyltestosterone (See [0040]). Secondary agents such as progesterone and prostaglandins are taught (see [0045] and [0062]). Wilson also teaches various excipients as useful such as penetration enhancing agents – ethanol and isopropyl myristate (see [0080]) and Carbopol (see [0144] Example 1).

Wilson does not teach the excipients herein claimed to be incorporated into a single composition for treating sexual dysfunction. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to incorporate all of the ingredients taught in Wilson to be used in the treatment of female sexual dysfunction since it would be reasonably expected the composition of Wilson having the testosterone and the herein claimed secondary agents to have an additive effect on the method of treating female sexual dysfunction.

Claims 1-29 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus have pharmaceutical industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.
